JOHN WARD'S COSTLY ERROR

His Wild Throw in the Eighth Inning of the First Game Settied the Contest.

(Special to The Evening World.)
POLO GROUNDS, NEW YORK, Aug little rain dropped out of the that lowered over the grounds this afternoon, and the chances were decidedly against finishing out either the two games with Chicago. Just before the first game the sur shone for a few brief moments and the lovers of a good thing for a little were hopeful that both games would be played, and the "fans" began to root for two victories for the Giants. The teams batted in this order:
